Unfeigned

Singer/Songwriter F.C. Westcott nails it with his debut album.

"Unfeigned" is a solid piece of Americana ear candy and is packed with heartfelt songs. Westcott penned all 11 cuts and his use of imagery and hooks, reveal a well seasoned writer.

The lead track "Someone Else's Arms" is the first single. "I'll Never Come Back" is a dark highlight with twists that send chills up your spine. The catchy ditty "That'll Get Me Home" seems to land somewhere between Big Band and Bluegrass. FC's writing chops keep the album fresh and the musicianship is enhancing, tasteful.

You will hear an essence of 70's Roots Rock woven throughout the album. Westcott sites influences of Steve Earle and Guy Clark and although it is definitely Americana Country, this venture is more reminiscent of Mellencamp, Bob Seger or Jackson Browne.

F.C. Westcott is worthy of a slot in any Americana lovers playlist. So, start the lead track, roll your window down, and hit the open road. This is one of those records!
